

BLAIR RAYMOND

Union College

Blair Raymond is Senior Director of External Relations at Union College. She has been at Union College for ten years, and her primary responsibilities include: overseeing the Grants Office (securing $3M annually) and handling corporate, government, and community relations. In this capacity, Blair launched an industry mentoring program for students, a corporate sponsorship program for summer research fellows, and research internships through alumni connections. Blair is also working on developing a cohesive community relations strategy with Union's dean, faculty, and new president, Dr. David Harris.

Prior, Blair worked at Skidmore College and Emma Willard School in grant seeking and fundraising capacities. She was also the assistant for development and grants in the Office of Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan in Washington, DC. (D-NY). She is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College.

Blair lives in Niskayuna with her husband Michael. They have three children: Haley (20), Hanna (18), and Jack (16), a Bernese Mountain Dog, Bodie; and a golden retriever, Bosco.
